Today marks the first day of Mural Arts Month, and this year we're proud to be the media sponsor. And even if we weren't a sponsor, we'd still be really psyched, since Mural Arts Month is always filled with tons of dedications, tours, artist talks, celebrations, and a whole smattering of great events that we're just happy to have in our city. As the great people over at the Mural Arts Program lay it out: "Highlights include restored iconic murals from the Restoration Project, the dedication of a new mural by internationally known artist Ryan McGinness in partnership with the Bridgette Mayer Gallery and the University City Science Center, fun and inspiring events with Design Philadelphia, and projects highlighting the Porch Light Initiative, working with issues around behavioral health."
