Eileen Neff and Rebecca Rutstein Included in Philadelphia artist group exhibition titled The Impossible Exhibition, Benefitting the Philadelphia Ballet.

May 26, 2022 – Philadelphia. The Bridgette Mayer Gallery is excited to announce that gallery artists Eileen Neff and Rebecca Rutstein will participate in the upcoming group show The Impossible Exhibition, on view through June 18 at Power Station 501 in Villanova, PA. With proceeds benefitting The Philadelphia Ballet, The Impossible Exhibition is so-named for its success in bringing together many prominent and influential Philadelphia-based artists for a rare group exhibition. In addition to work by Neff and Rutstein, the exhibition features Tom Judd, Kiki Gaffney, Bruce Pollock, Neysa Grassi, Sarah Gamble, Thomas Brummett, Ruth Thorne-Thomsen, Robert Straight, Juan Logan, and Stephen Estock.

There will be an opening reception on Wednesday, June 8 from 5-8pm. The event is free and open to the public, but guests should register online at: <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/the-impossible-exhibition-tickets-333660175567>. After June 8, the exhibition will be available to view by appointment only through Saturday, June 18. For more information on appointment-based viewing, please email curator Thomas Brummett at: thomas.brummett.photo@gmail.com.
